

all relationships are strong relationships because the primary key of the related entity contains a primary key component of the parent entity

Weak entities are those entities which cannot exist on their own. Such entities are dependent on main entities or parent entities. No weak entities because every table has a primary key